

Falling Behind Whites.

From the Washington Post

Booker Washington, president of the Tuskegee Institute, the colored industrial school of Alabama, lectured in Washington on Friday night before the Bethel Literary Society.

"The saddest thing in the condition of the colored man to-day," said the speaker, "is that he takes no part in the industrial life of this country. I was in a Northern city the other day, and I saw a church being erected by the hard-earned pennies of our race, but the contractor would not let a colored man drive a single nail. The white men had made all the building material, and the colored people were paying them to build the church, because they had no contractors in their own race competent to do the work."

"It also seems that we are losing our hold on the industries we used to control. Some years ago, in the North, the colored barber had a monopoly on his trade. He did not put his brains into the business, as he should have done, and the white man is gradually taking the business away from him. If you go to New York to-day you can hardly find a colored barber."

"If you go to Atlanta, where a few years ago there was nothing but colored horse-shoers, you will see signs of 'Veterinary Horse Shoeing.' And you will not find two black horse-shoers there. The white man knows more about the anatomy of the horse's hoof and he shoes the animal in a scientific manner. There is no room for the old negro-shoer. Only a few years ago in Atlanta you could see the old colored uncles going around the streets with a long pole and a whitewash brush and bucket. If you had them come in and whitewash your house they would wash the ceilings and the walls and the carpets, and the furniture. They gave no thought to their work. But if you look for those old colored men now you will find instead the white house decorator, who understands something about the blending of colors, and who never drops a spot on the carpet or the furniture. The old man with his bucket and his long pole is not wanted."

Our mothers and sisters, who once were the recognized laundresses of the country, are losing their business. I was in Chicago recently and sent my laundry away in the morning and in the evening it was returned. Down South I used to send it away Monday morning, to my old colored washwoman, and I was lucky to get it back Saturday night. How long can our people hold the laundry business if the young men who are graduating from these industrial schools do not come South and build electric laundries to compete with the white man, who has a machine now in which he washes one hundred shirts an hour?

"To-day 85 per cent. of our people live from agricultural pursuits, and we have but two scientific farmers in the whole race. But you may ask what is being done for this race at Tuskegee. The race is being educated to realize that the relations between the races will only improve so far as the negro improves his education. He must produce something which the white man wants before he will be recognized."

THE BAZAAR.

The First Night of the Monaghan Hose Co-Bazaar a Great Success.

Monaghan Hose Co., No. 2 scored a decided success with their Bazaar Monday night. The Armory Hall was crowded, the audience was delighted with the programme of entertainment and the financial result was very satisfactory to the members of the Hose Company.

The first feature of the evening was the Bicycle Drill, arranged and conducted by Mr. L. A. Ryttenberg. Four young ladies and an equal number of gentlemen participated in the drill, and as each one of them is an expert and graceful bicyclist the drill was a fine exhibition of skillful riding as well as pretty.

The next number on the programme in which the crowd displayed general interest was the refreshments. The ladies in charge of the refreshment tables were unable to keep pace with the orders, and sad to relate, the supply of ice cream was exhausted long before the demand was supplied.

The minstrel show in which Louis Lyons, Irving Ryttenberg, Frank Little and Hemby Smith were the stars, was an excellent bit of imitation negro minstrelsy. Some of the jokes and local hits were very clever, the song by Irving Ryttenberg in particular.

The evening's entertainment was closed with a wheel of fortune raffle of a portion of the contributed articles.

The receipts of the evening were $102.

BETTER THAN A SHOW.

A Most Delightful, Amusing, Harmonious, Representative and Satisfactory Mass Meeting.

The mass meeting Friday night was a most delightful occasion. In attendance there was nothing left to be desired, for the Court House was filled until standing room only was at a premium; in the speeches there was nothing of bitterness or aspersion but much of wit and humor; in the presiding officer the meeting was most fortunate in having Col. R. D. Lee, for he introduced each of the many candidates in a most pleasant and altogether inimitable manner. The crowd was good humored and ready to appreciate a well turned jest, yet earnest and attentive to the arguments seriously advanced by the candidates, and it is safe to say that no fact brought forward nor no promise made will be forgotten.

As an entertainment the mass meeting is correctly classed as a serio-comedy, with considerable of the farce grafted upon it. As a successful entertainment the mass meeting was very successful, and the Executive Committee should receive a vote of thanks from the well entertained citizens for having provided so excellent a show at no cost to the public. It was something better than a minstrel, and much more entertaining than nine out of ten of the burst cork aggregations that go around the country hunting the half dollars of the public.

The first speaker was Dr. J. J. Bassard, then Capt. A. N. Freeland, Messrs A. W. Suder, Bartow Wash and H. Frank Wilson in the order named. Each made his speech and each one received a respectful hearing. Mr. Walsh brought down the house by a personal reference, applicable to himself, and this served as a cue to a number of those who followed. Maj. Wilson, of course made the longest, most eloquent and most taking speech of the evening, for he is both gifted and experienced as a public speaker.

The candidates for Mayor, each and every one, pledged themselves to use their best endeavors to administer the city government in an economical and business manner, reduce taxes as much as possible as consistent with the best interests of the city, remodel if not repeal the license law, support the fire department and give the affairs of the city their personal supervision and constant attention.

Then came the candidates for Aldermen in the following order:

L. S. Carson, T. B. Fraser, Jr., Joel E. Brunson, H. Harby, C. M. Hurst, Jr., E. H. Moses, J. Frank Pate, G. W. Reardon, George D. Shore and Edgar Skinner.

Messrs R. S. Bradwell, Sr., R. W. Durand and Henry D. Barnett, declined to stand for election. Messrs R. H. Baker, J. E. Jervey, M. Keananough, H. J. McLaurin, H. Ryttenberg and C. E. Stubbs were absent and did not respond when called on. With one or two exceptions, however, the cause of their absence was stated and their excuses made to the meeting. Col. Lee, as chairman, expressed his great personal regret and the regret of the meeting that those candidates were unavoidably absent, and in doing so he but gave expression to the sentiment of the citizens present.

The speeches of the Aldermanic candidates were brief, business like and to the point. Each man declared himself as determined to work for the good of the city, if elected, and to use as the first consideration the economical administration of the city affairs.

The meeting was in session less than two hours, which is the best proof that there were no long-winded speeches made.

The mass meeting was very satisfactory and will be productive of good and no evil results.

Mr. E. A. Swinton's new residence on the site of the one burned some months ago is nearing completion. The contract is in the hands of Mr. J. W. McKiever.

The woods in the vicinity of the old C. S. and N. depot were set on fire Thursday night about 10.30 o'clock, and the big blaze that resulted alarmed those who saw it to such an extent that an alarm of fire was given that called out the fire department. Delgar, Monaghan and the other squads went to the railroad crossing on Liberty street, before they learned that their services were not needed. Delgar squad was the first to reach the hydrant this time, as the horse did not break anything and the long distance to be covered gave them an advantage over the foot reels.

Clifford Durant and Joseph Robinson, two little negroes, were caught throwing rocks at the train on the C. S. & N. R. R. and were arrested at once. They were taken before Magistrate Wells, but it was decided on account of their youth, not to prosecute them, if their parents would give them a sound thrashing. This proposition was gladly accepted by the parents of the little miscreants, and they were conducted to a secluded spot, where the lash was laid on with a will. Such punishment is more suited to the nature of the offence and more beneficial to the culprits than a prosecution in the courts would have been.

Privateer Personals.

Privateer Township, S. C., March 30.

According to appointment the Amusement Club met at Miss Cally Wells' last Friday night, and the following programme was rendered: Music—Miss Una Wells; Dialogue—Messrs Jimmie Whilden and Willie Wells. Music on the organ and singing—Mr. Jimmie Whilden and Misses Mabel Beckham and Katie and Lizzie Whilden. Reading—Mr. Richard Tisdale; Music—Miss Carrie Cain; Recitation—Miss Nena Wells. Dr. Wyman attended the meeting and was elected a member of the club. He is the first author who has been a member.

The next meeting of the club will be held at Mr. Matt Ramsey's on Friday night, April 10.

Mr. Harry Weeks, aged 20, son of Mr. Pink Weeks, who lives just across the Manchester township line, was buried Tuesday.

Nearly three weeks ago Mr. Hampton D. McLeod left home and was engaged in work in Columbia. On Saturday he was accidentally knocked down and killed by a train at the Columbia Union depot and was buried at Bethel Church yesterday afternoon. Mr. McLeod was 23 years old. It is a remarkable fact that three members of his father's immediate family, the only ones who have died, have met with accidental deaths. A few years since his father, Mr. Hamp. McLeod, was killed by being thrown from a vehicle while the mule was running, a sister, Miss Emma McLeod, was killed several years ago by a falling well sweep. All three lie buried together in the Bethel grave yard.

Miss Grace Mellichamp, of Columbia, will open a private school in the community to-day, which will continue for three months. Her family will probably remove to our township this year.

One of the most pleasant and interesting sights which we saw at the Mahoney memorial services at Calvary Church last Saturday was eleven Privateer girls all seated on the same bench.

It is an interesting fact that one of Privateer's former citizens had a suit of clothes made by a man who afterwards became President of the United States—this citizen was Major Richard B. Cain, who was well known, and died in 1880. He had the suit when he was at school. It was made by Andrew Johnson, who, as our readers will remember, began life as a tailor and succeeded Abraham Lincoln as President in 1865.

We were recently shown an interesting relic of the past in the shape of an old copy of Josephus, which is owned by Mrs. S. E. Kolb an old lady who is well known as Mrs. Mack Kolb, and who lives in the south eastern part of Privateer. This book belonged to Mrs. Kolb's husband's grandfather, Major Tom Kolb, a Revolutionary character, who kept a tavern just below where Mrs. S. E. Kolb now lives. In this old volume is a record of Major Kolb's family, from which we learn that he and his wife were both born in 1751 and were married in 1779. This couple were the fore-parents of the Privateer Kolbs. It is said Major Kolb came from North Carolina. One of Mrs. S. E. Kolb's daughters, Mrs. Robert Owen of this county, owns an arm chair in which it is said Major Kolb used to sit and read this old volume.

Mr. John Hudson has a daughter named Osceola—she is called Osee. While bearing the same name as the great Seminole warrior, it appears that Miss Hudson was not named for him. She is the only person we have ever seen who bore this name.

Mr. Jas McLeod has removed to Columbia.

A few of the larger tobacco planters of this county are considering the advisability of building a tobacco warehouse in this city. If this project materializes Sumter will have three warehouses next season. The promoters of the new Warehouse Co. have made an offer, it is reported, for a desirable site for a warehouse.

The chain gang has been at work on the road near the Mile Branch since Tuesday of last week, and excellent work has been done already. The road has been built up and graded on both sides of the branch, and the hills on either side of the roadway have been cut down to fill in the washouts in the road. As soon as a team is purchased by the county commissioners to be used in conjunction with the chain gang on the road work, much better results will be obtained and more rapid progress made. There were ten convicts at work yesterday afternoon, and they all seemed happy and contented, singing lustily while they plied the shovels, spades and picks. The convicts wear regulation chain shackles, but they are not chained together as the custom in some chain gangs. Mr. T. D. DuBois, Jr., has charge of the gang, and Mr. Jesse Hurst acts as guard. If the gang can be kept well supplied with convicts, the amount of work that can be done on the roads during the next year will be very much greater than at first thought possible.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

An Account of the Services Held in Honor of the Late Rev. H. W. Mahoney, at Calvary Baptist Church, in Clarendon.

Mr. Editor: Last Saturday we had the pleasure of attending the memorial services held at the Calvary Baptist Church, in northern Clarendon, in honor of the late venerable Rev. H. W. Mahoney. When we arrived at the church, which was crowded, the Hon. J. E. Tindal was speaking from the pulpit platform, on which were seated the ministers and choir. Hanging on the wall above the platform was a large portrait of Mr. Mahoney.

Mr. Tindal spoke of Mr. Mahoney's character, the quality of his preaching and also described him in a social way. He went about, Mr. Tindal said, with sunshine beaming on his face, and he was a loyal and true friend. "He was," said Mr. Tindal, "my father's friend, my friend, my children's friend."

At the conclusion of Mr. Tindal's remarks there was singing, after which the Rev. O. C. Brown announced that the Rev. J. W. Perry who had been expected, would not be present.

Remarks were next made by the Rev. T. M. Bailey, D.D., of Greenville, who is the corresponding secretary and treasurer of the Baptist State Mission Board. Dr. Bailey spoke of Mr. Mahoney as a contemporary of other men, great, good and noble—as a man who had convictions and as a gifted man in prayer. The eloquent, faithful Mahoney, he said, was not dead—he sleeps the sleep of the just.

The Rev. A. J. S. Thomas, D.D., one of the editors of the Baptist Courier, next spoke. He said if Mr. Mahoney was with us he would tell us to hold fast to the faith—be loyal to God's Word—hold together and be a united people.

Dr. Thomas' remarks were followed by a solo,—"Can it be True"—which was beautifully rendered by Mr. Gilbert Flowers.

The Rev. C. C. Brown then spoke. Old Brother Mahoney, he said, had stood the test of time—for 65 years he had labored as the pastor of Calvary Church and he had led a white life. Mr. Brown told how he had esteemed it a privilege to have worked up the idea of erecting this monument to Mr. Mahoney's memory.

After Mr. Brown's remarks the crowd repaired to the monument. Dr. Bailey offered a fervent prayer—the monument was unveiled by Mr. Brown and the grave was decorated with flowers.

The monument is neat and attractive in appearance. As it would take up so much space, we did not attempt to copy all the inscriptions on it.

The floral decorations were beautiful. The center piece was a pyramid of hyacinths, geraniums, snowdrops, and other flowers. There was a cross in this center piece, besides which there were wreaths and other crosses on the grave.

At the conclusion of the unveiling ceremonies a most bountiful and excellent dinner was spread on an impromptu scaffold at the back of the church. After the crowd had enjoyed this repast, there was some singing in the church and the audience began to disperse.

The crowd which attended the memorial services was large, orderly and appeared to enjoy the occasion greatly. These interesting services will long be remembered by those who were present—it was indeed a notable occasion in the annals of the Baptists of Clarendon County.

KILLED ON THE RAILS.

Mr. H. D. McLeod Killed by the C. & G. Train Yesterday.

Yesterday morning shortly before 11 o'clock, a young white man named H. D. McLeod was instantly killed by passenger train No. 651 of the Southern railway. The accident occurred near the Palmetto ice factory, which is but a short distance from the union shed. The Columbia and Greenville train was coming in the direction of the union shed and a tall young man was walking in front of the engine. It seems that he was given warning of the approaching train, but as there was a train moving on another track nearby, the young man became considerably confused. At any rate, McLeod hurried from one track to the other and in attempting to cross the track the train was moving on stumbled, and the engine struck his head, throwing him off the track, killing him instantly. The Southern track is on the outside near an embankment with a short decline. McLeod was thrown down the embankment.

A large crowd collected and it was some time before the dead man was identified. Finally a gentleman arrived who identified McLeod. He said that the dead man had come from Sumter two weeks ago and had got work at the Granby Mills company. He was a carpenter and was engaged in assisting to build the new cottages near the Granby cotton mills. Lumber had given out and young McLeod was sent to a lumber yard to order more material. He had started up the track on his way to the lumber yard when he met his untimely end.

Mr. McLeod was a man of about 23 or 24 years old, from a good family of Sumter, and had made many friends during his short stay in Columbia. The deceased has a brother, Mr. J. C. McLeod, living in this city. Coroner Roach was notified of the accident and empaneled a jury who will hold an inquest to-morrow morning.

The remains will be sent to Sumter and be interred at Reed's station.—The State March 29.

Literary Note for April.

The General of the Army, the General commanding the U. S. Corps of Engineers, Vice-Pres. Webb of the New York Central, and John Jacob Astor, compose The Cosmopolitan Magazine's Board of Judges to decide the merits of the Horseless Carriages which will be entered in the May trials, for which The Cosmopolitan offers $3,000 in prizes. This committee is undoubtedly the most distinguished that has ever consented to act upon the occasion of the trial of a new and useful invention. The interest which these gentlemen have shown in accepting places upon the committee is indicative of the importance of the subject, and that the contest itself will be watched with marked interest on both sides of the Atlantic. Frank Stockton's new story, "Mrs. Cliff's Yacht," which begins in the April Cosmopolitan, promises to be one of the most interesting ever written by that fascinating story-teller. Readers of "The Adventures of Captain Horn" will find in "Mrs. Cliff's Yacht" something that they have been waiting for.
